

I'm intrigued about the future of our food products, knowing that so many hard-working, professional engineers are working to improve the food products we will consume in the next generation. Today, I join my colleagues in saluting the work of all engineers who work to improve the technologies that enhance the quality of our lives.

TRIBUTE TO UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE

HON. ED BRYANT

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 24, 1995

Mr. BRYANT of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, the University of Tennessee celebrated its bicentennial last year. For 200 years this excellent institution has provided a quality education to Tennesseans and to people from around the Nation and the world. The history of the university is tied to the history of my State and I would like to submit for the RECORD an article by Mr. Harold C. Streibich which illustrates how this flagship institution is rooted in the rich history of Tennessee.

ON UT'S COLORS: THE LEGEND OF ORANGE AND WHITE

(By Harold C. Streibich)

Over the years, particularly during football season, people wonder, "Where did the University of Tennessee get the colors of orange and white?"

Now, there are many tales of how and why UT selected orange and white, from the color of mountain daisies to stories involving General Neyland's choosing them for a promotional package, but you must hear the whole story of the orange and white. So let's start at the beginning:

On July 12, 1690, William of Orange, husband of Mary Stuart, defeated Ex-King James II at the Boyne River in Northern Ireland, and established the right of William and Mary to the British throne. James had his "Green" Catholic Irish, and William had a conglomerate bunch of mercenaries and the Dutch Blue Guard, who wore orange and white cockades in honor of William. Since that time, the Protestant Irish have worn orange whereas the Catholic Irish have worn green.

The next chapter takes place when the "over-the-mountain" men of Western Carolina (today's East Tennessee) were proud to be Protestant or Scotch Irish and wanted everyone to know it. When they march out to help defend North Carolina proper during the American Revolution at the battles of King's Mountain and Cowpens under Uncle Dan'l Morgan and General Issac Shelby (for whom Shelby County, Tennessee is named), the only uniform part of their apparel was an orange and white cockade. This untrained group of militiamen gained fame for their value in holding the battle line, and being excellent sharpshooters.

After the Revolution and statehood, the orange and white cockade became a part of the tradition of the now Tennessee militia, which fought the Indians at Moccasin Bend (Sam Houston fought as a young Lieutenant and was wounded there) and other places throughout Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama.

Later when Major General Andrew Jackson left to defend New Orleans, the only way you could tell the difference between the Kentucky and Tennessee militia was that the boys from Tennessee wore their orange and white cockades.

Next came a man by the name of Davy Crockett who with 23 Tennesseans rode into the Alamo wearing their orange and white. After the Alamo fell, the rally cry of "Remember the Alamo" was used by Sam Houston and his boys in their charge of Santa Anna at the Battle of San Jacinto. They also wore their orange and white cockades.

During the Mexican War so many men volunteered from the State of Tennessee that it is remembered as "the Volunteer State," and Tennessee Volunteer Regiments colors were orange and white.

When the Civil War came, Tennessee regiments of both the Federal and Confederate armies honored the tradition of orange and white to such an extent that when people saw the colors, they just knew it was a Tennessee outfit. It just so happened that this was not true. A Confederate regiment fighting in Northwest Tennessee were very proud of their orange and white colors, but they were Texans under General Hood, and Texas Rangers to boot.

Now when the University of Tennessee took the nickname "Volunteers," it only goes to reason that the colors would be orange and white.

What about Texas? The University of Texas also had colors of orange and white, which were the same as the Tennessee colors until Coach Darrell Royal changed them to "burnt orange and white," colors which are still used today. University of Texas and the University of Tennessee even have agreement on the use of the "UT," the colors and trademarks.

So, this Fall, when the UT Band is playing "The Spirit of the Hill" and 90,000 fans are screaming for the success of the Tennessee football team, I wonder how many will know the history of the colors and remember that they were also worn at Kings' Mountain, Moccasin Bend, New Orleans, the Alamo, San Jacinto, Shiloh and Missionary Ridge. The boys for "the hill" again wear orange and white in remembrance of the volunteers of old.

PASSAGE OF PAPERWORK REDUC-TION ACT AND MORATORIUM ON REGULATIONS WILL REDUCE RED TAPE

HON. ROB PORTMAN

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 24, 1995

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, this week, the House of Representatives completed action on two important items which are a part of the Contract With America's Wage Enhancement and Job Creation Act, intended to relieve individuals and businesses of the burden of onerous Federal regulations, paperwork, and red tape.

On Wednesday, the House passed H.R. 830, legislation to strengthen the Paperwork Reduction Act, which would reduce the volume of reports, forms, applications, and other paperwork required by the Federal Government.

The House also passed the Regulatory Transition Act which prohibits Federal agencies from imposing any new rules until December 31, 1995, or the date Congress enacts reforms requiring cost/benefit analysis and scientific risk assessment as part of the process.

American taxpayers, small business owners, ranchers, farmers, property owners, and local governments have waited too long for Congress to take common sense action to lift the burden of excessive and costly Government regulation and paperwork. That's why the Contract With America includes provisions which promote economic growth by forcing us to halt ill-conceived regulations and make Government bureaucrats accountable for the burdens they impose on American taxpayers and workers.

Business owners spend millions of hours a year filling out Government forms at an annual cost of $100 billion. And it is not only businesses who are overwhelmed with paperwork, it is estimated that the American people spent more than 6.5 billion hours filling out forms and compiling records for the Federal Government in 1994.

Why is this a problem? Because regulations, red tape, and excessive paperwork are essentially hidden taxes. Employers waste time and money complying with these burdens and cannot hire new employees or invest in machinery and equipment to make workers more productive. Onerous regulations and paperwork create jobs for lawyers but destroy jobs for business—especially small businesses that generate a vast majority of the new jobs in our economy. That is why it is imperative that we take action to stop this counter-productive trend now.

The regulatory moratorium is necessary while we sort out what regulatory reforms are appropriate. It does, of course, exempt rules that are necessary to prevent an imminent threat to health or safety or to enforce criminal laws.

I supported H.R. 830 and H.R. 450 because I believe these measures demonstrate a continuing commitment to the American people that Congress is finally willing to turn back the tide of paperwork and regulatory red tape burdening the American people.

SUPPORT SUNSHINE ON THE FED-ERAL OPEN MARKET COMMIT-TEE ACT

HON. JAMES A. TRAFICANT

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 24, 1995

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, recently the Chairman of the Federal Reserve, Alan Greenspan, announced that transcripts of their Federal Open Market Committee [FOMC] meetings will be disclosed to the public—after 30 days.

Enough is enough. I urge my colleagues to cosponsor my "Sunshine on the Federal Open Market Committee Act," which will apply the Government-in-the-Sunshine Act to FOMC meetings.

As you know, Mr. Speaker, the "Fed" is charged with duty of not only conducting the day-to-day banking for the entire Nation, but regulating the economy through the formulation of monetary policy. Needless to say, it wields immense power. In a typical month, it pumps anywhere between $1 billion and $4 billion into the economy while dangling the threat of higher interest rates over the American public. Even more intimidating, Mr. Speaker, is that half of all the banks in the country are members of the Federal Reserve System while all national banks must belong. All told, the Fed has holdings of over $300 billion—accounting for 7 percent of the national debt.
